Les éPOPées, c'est le nom de la fête du Campus Condorcet, à laquelle vous êtes convié.e.s le 2 octobre !

Nouvelle Cité des humanités et des sciences sociales, le Campus Condorcet est avant tout un lieu d'ouverture sur le monde, sur son temps et sur son territoire. Il y a un an, le Campus vivait sa première rentrée et souhaitait la bienvenue à ses résidents. Un an après, le Campus et ses équipes vous invitent à célébrer cette ouverture à l'occasion de la première édition de la fête Les éPOPées.

Résolument ancré dans son quartier, le Campus prend racine au nord de la place du Front Populaire située au coeur du territoire de la Plaine Saint-Denis. "éPOPées" fait référence à cette place emblématique autour de laquelle s'articule toute la vie du quartier. Organisée par et pour les résident.e.s, cette fête est également celle de tou.te.s ceux et celles qui font vivre le quartier : habitant.e.s, commerçant.e.s, associations...

En vous conviant à vivre ces éPOPées, nous vous invitons à participer à une journée épique, faite de rencontres, de découvertes - autant d'occasions d'inventer votre épithète homérique. Avec plus de 20 événements organisés sur tout le site - projection de films, expositions, ateliers, visites, concerts - chaque participant et participante est invité.e à se divertir, apprendre et s'émerveiller... Pour devenir les héros et héroïnes de ces éPOPées !

Ensemble, faisons de ces éPOPées une journée mythique !

#Bourse : PhD Research Fellowship in Social Sciences
Catholic University of Leuven, Belgium

Date limite : 30 septembre 2020

The Centre for Research on Peace and Development (CRPD) announces the vacancy of one PhD Research Fellowship in Social Sciences. CRPD is a multidisciplinary research centre at the Faculty of Social Sciences at the University of Leuven (KU Leuven) in Belgium. CRPD's multidisciplinary team conducts conceptual, empirical and applied research with the aim of improving our understanding of the causes of violent conflict and political instability as well as the challenges of sustainable peace building.

Project

The PhD Research Fellowship will form part of the following research project: “Who wants to share? Analyzing perceptions of horizontal inequalities and redistribution attitudes in India and South Africa”.

Despite the widespread recognition of the importance of inequalities between ethnic, religious and racial groups or so-called ‘horizontal inequalities’ (HIs) in multi-cultural societies, extremely little research has been conducted on three important and closely related dimensions of this concept and phenomenon: 1) the relationship between objective and perceived socio-economic HIs, 2) people’s general attitudes towards redistributive policies aimed at correcting existing socio-economic HIs or what we refer to in this proposal as ‘horizontal redistribution’, and 3) people’s actual behavioral responses to different kind of redistributive interventions.

The above-mentioned project addresses these three important –yet neglected- dimensions of HIs by systematically investigating and analyzing the determinants of people’s perceptions of socio-economic HIs as well as their general attitudes and actual behavioral responses to horizontal redistribution in India and South Africa; i.e. two countries that have been confronted with very sharp socio-economic HIs for a long time.

Profile

- The applicant should have completed a master’s degree in sociology, economics, political science, development studies or any other closely related subject;
- The applicant should have an outstanding educational/academic track record;
- The applicant should have excellent analytical and writing skills;
- The applicant should have strong quantitative research skills and should be able to statistically analyse survey and/or experimental data;
- Practical experience with survey and/or experimental research will be considered an advantage;
- Any peer-reviewed publications will be considered an advantage;
- The applicant should be fully proficient in English. Proficiency in any of the local languages of India or South Africa will be considered an advantage.

Offer

- A 4–year PhD Research Fellowship (100%) starting in November 2020 or by mutual agreement;
- Renewable contracts of 1 year on the basis of yearly positive evaluation.
- A competitive wage;
- A pleasant and challenging work environment;
- A position at an inclusive workplace enterprise;
- Time spent on teaching and administrative work will be limited to a maximum of 20%.

Interested?

Poste de Chercheur / Maître de conférences : Asian Migration, Mobility and Diaspora

Université Brunei Darussalam

Date limite 15 septembre 2020

The Institute of Asian Studies is recruiting four new staff members.

The Institute of Asian Studies at Universiti Brunei Darussalam is a research institute dedicated to producing and disseminating cutting-edge knowledge about the societies, economies, politics, cultures and histories of the Asian region. As a research institute, we are interested in candidates who are very productive in research and publish in top academic journals, who have a solid experience in international collaboration and who can contribute to the IAS “Asia in transition” Springer book series.

Universiti Brunei Darussalam (UBD) is the leading higher education institution in Brunei Darussalam. It partners with more than 100 world-leading universities and institutions spanning 6 continents in more than 40 countries. UBD entered the Times Higher Education (THE) World University Rankings for the very first time this year with a global position in the 401 to 500 band. This makes UBD the fourth ranked university in ASEAN in one of the most influential university rankings in the world. UBD has also shown a steady rise up the Quacquarelli Symonds (QS) World University Rankings. It currently ranks at 298 in the latest release, 25 places from last year's 323, confirming its status as an institution that is internationally recognised for excellence in teaching and research.

The Institute of Asian Studies is looking for talented researchers and dedicated lecturers in the following areas:

1) Asian Migration, Mobility and Diaspora

The migration of people, ideas and capital has been a critical influence in the development of Asia, both in the past and present. The intra-regional movements of people such as Indonesians and Filipinos and within Borneo have not always been given the attention they deserve. In the age of globalization Asians have also formed diasporic communities in North America, Europe and the Middle East. IAS is looking for a scholar in Asian migration in Asia and outside Asia who can embrace the interactions between migration, mobility and diasporas. Applicants must have a Ph.D. in Sociology, Anthropology, History, Geography, Economics, or a related field.

2) Borneo Studies

The successful candidate may have a focus on environmental transformations and the conservation and protection of biodiversity in Borneo. He may also address a range of modern issues affecting the populations and landscapes of the island: among others, urbanisation and the emergence of an educated middle class; tourism development; the development of popular culture and the media and changing identities in their widest sense. Applicants must have a Ph.D. in Sociology, Anthropology, History, Geography, and Economics.

3) Language, Culture and Communications in Asia

The use and transformation of language in the context of inter-Asian relationships and interactions, including the increasing importance of trans-Asian popular culture through the media, internet, film, television, music and performance, tourism and migration is getting more importance with the widespread use of social media. Applicants must have a Ph.D. in Sociology, Anthropology, and the multidisciplinary fields of socio-linguistics, cultural studies, literature, media and film studies, post-colonial studies, and ethnic studies.

4) Human Security in Southeast Asia

Addressing the interdependence of human security in a time of pandemic crisis and its associated material risks and psychological stress is a major challenge for policy and governance in Southeast Asia. It has major implications for public health, livelihoods, choices and opportunities of communities and individuals across the region. This area of research is open to scholars who are broadly interdisciplinary in outlook and interested in the ways in which human security, is understood and interpreted in Southeast Asia. Applicants must have a Ph.D. in Sociology, Anthropology, Political Science, Human Geography, psychology or a related field.

All applicants must have a PhD from a recognized university, and demonstrated outstanding record of publication in top-indexed academic journals and renowned publishers. He should be able to teach modules in a trans-disciplinary way in areas of in social sciences.

The positions are open for all levels of position: Assistant Professor, Senior Assistant Professor, Associate Professor, and Professor.

Deadline for application: 15 September 2020
